Summary

I am a Senior AI Research Scientist at Autodesk Research, working on multimodal deep learning for 3D generative modeling and design. I received my Ph.D. in Computer Science from the University of Mannheim with highest distinction, where my research focused on the limitations of large language models in resource-constrained multimodal and multilingual settings. In particular, I investigated how vision-language models (VLMs) can synthesize programs that compile to visual media, a direction known as graphics program synthesis. I also have experience with pre-training token-free language models for style-conditioned poetry generation and developing unsupervised evaluation metrics for machine translation.
